How Distressing!

How the get-together movement among Republicans distresses the opposition is disclosed by the wailing of our amiable Democratic contemporary, whose solicitude is really pathetic, says the Omaha Bee. It goes without saying that there can be no getting together unless Republicans of all factions and all shades unite regardless of past differences for a forward march against the political enemy. But this very union is what the Democrats see spelling defeat for them. It is their political strategy if possible, to keep the progressives and the regulars apart by fanning fears and playing upon ambitions.

The disintegration of the Progressive party as a separate party organization has made it plain that the reunion must come behind the Republican standard, and that is what the Democrats are really afraid of. If it were the other way, and if the regulars who were to be brought back on the reservation, they would be the ones to have the tender consideration of the Democrats.

The probabilities are, however, that our Democratic friends will have all they can do for the next campaign to keep the discordant wings of their own party working in unison, with little left to dispense blandishments to any brand of Republicans.

More Watchful Waiting.

It is disheartening to note that President Wilson, in his new negotiations with Mexico, appears willing to emphasize the fact that "forcible intervention is not meant." The great Pan-American movement to solve the Mexican problem seems to have twisted itself into another fine scheme of moral suasion. We are to appeal to the Mexicans as men and brethren to behave themselves, and we are to give our "active moral support" to any practicable plan of constitutional government, and to a new president. Then we shall settle down hopefully and prayerfully to a new stage of watchful waiting. That is all.

Our warships have gone to Mexico. But so tender is the president of Mexican feelings and so solicitous of the acquiescence of the South American republics, that the assurance was sent in advance that they were going to Vera Cruz merely "to protect foreign citizens." It is all a humiliating and unnecessary confession to Mexico that our Mexican gun is not loaded.

The mournful truth about the president's entire Mexican policy, or series of changing policies, is that he has at times employed the language of force only to descend to mere vocal evasions when confronted by the alternative of using the instrumentalities of force. There is no opinion in Mexico that Mexico will be required to do what we demand that Mexico do. Carranza is even now defiant and insulting, and Villa is apparently complaining because he is heading a losing cause. The infection of outlaws has extended across the Mexican line and the whole Texas borderland is a seething cauldron of terrorism and revolution.

Mexico is not a theory, to be discussed with fine phrases and academic loftiness. It is a horrible fact, and our squirming and dodginess and our comforting self-assurances that Mexico is not our business, do not help us to do our duty.

Neglect of Democrats.

For two successive years surveys of mineral resources in Alaska were delayed and prevented by neglect of the Democrats.

Failure to pass the appropriations for these surveys in time to equip the experts from the geological survey made the work impossible.

Reports from the chief of the Alaska mineral resources division furnish an official account of how this important activity was hindered by the negligent delay of the Democratic House.

In 1912 the appropriation for the continuation of the investigation of mineral resources of Alaska was not made until August 24," says the administrative report for that year. "As a consequence of this delay but little could be accomplished, and the projects undertaken could be carried out only at relatively heavy expense.

"Only three parties out of the twelve eventually dispatched to Alaska had a full season's field work. Several other parties were dispatched under temporary grants, but the funds were so inadequate that the parties were undermanned and but poorly equipped. Several important pieces of work had to be abandoned.

Appropriation for the same work was delayed the next year. The official description of the way this embarrassing delay, the report declaring that it caused a loss of twenty-nine per cent in time, a heavy money loss, and a check in efficiency that cannot be estimated.

"The fact that the appropriation was not made promptly," says the 1913 department account, "much curtailed the field season of several of the parties and thereby greatly enhanced the cost of the work. Out of a total of fourteen field parties, only five had a full season's work. The loss in time due to delay in appropriation, amounted to an average of one month, or twenty-nine per cent, for each of eight field parties.

"A careful estimate shows that the actual monetary loss occasioned by the delay—that is, expenditure for which there was no return—was over seven per cent of the total appropriation. There was also a loss of efficiency brought about by the delay of the field work and consequent change of plans which cannot be expressed in figures."

NEW HARBOR GROUNDS.

A small fishing vessel is reported to have caught over 18,000 pounds of halibut during one day in June, the highest catch on record for a boat of its size. The catch was made in new harbor grounds which have been located this year by the bureau of fisheries between twenty-seven and thirty-five miles west of North Head, the mouth of the Columbia river, in Washington.

The exact area of these new grounds is not known but they lie directly between two areas surveyed last year by the steamer Albatross. Arrangements are now being made for a thorough survey of this new bank to determine its fishing possibilities. It is reported to be from ninety to ninety-five fathoms deep and in some spots to be beyond the hundred fathom line given on the chart.

It is generally expected that this new fishing field will prove the most productive now belonging to the United States.

Many Recoveries

From Lung Trouble

Eckman's Alternative has restored to health many sufferers from lung trouble. Head what it did in this case:

"Gentlemen—In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, a leading practitioner, said that it was lung trouble. I got very weak. Coughing, loss of appetite, and general debility had done great good. I began taking it at once. I continued faithfully, using no other medicine. I finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I finally believe Eckman's Alternative saved my life." (Abbreviated.)

(Advised.) JAS. SQUIRE. Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size 25 cents. Large size 50 cents. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.
